THE LOSERS' GROUND

A closer reconstruction of the clearing and riverbanks

1:3,000 at A2 - reconstructed distances

0 100 m 200 m

READING THIS SHEET

The precise shape of this small area is inferred. The western branch, the path from the Kansas bridge and the separate entry cylinder preserve the book's local relationships.

- A Named in the novel
- B Inferred
- C Proposed

All coordinates are reconstructed. A names a relationship stated in the text; it does not certify an exact position.

MAP KEY

LOCAL RELATIONSHIPS

44 The small western arm is dammed. The broader eastern arm remains a distinct channel.

43 The clubhouse and smoke-hole are one place. Its stated width is about 1.5 m; the numbered symbol is enlarged for reading.

45 Silver is hidden under the bridge over the tributary. The route to the clearing follows the slope down to the river.

47 The entry cylinder is drawn separately from Pumphouse #3 and from Patrick's trail-end cylinder.

Paths and vegetation describe a plausible landscape. Their individual bends and boundaries are not supplied by King.
